About Columbia Land Trust:
Columbia Land Trust is dedicated to conserving and caring for the lands, waters, and wildlife of the Columbia River region through sound science and strong relationships. Columbia Land Trust has permanently conserved more than 43,000 acres, an area equivalent to eight of Portland’s Forest Parks, and has restored thousands of acres for the benefit of both wildlife and local communities. Columbia Land Trust recently embarked on a 25-year plan to conserve the lower Columbia’s most important places by blending rigorous science and community partnerships. Core to the conservation agenda is a commitment to supporting a more inclusive and equitable conservation movement, arriving at common ground conservation solutions. Together, we are ensuring a future that is thriving, prosperous, and nature-rich. For more information, visit our website at columbialandtrust.org.

About Audubon Society of Portland:
Audubon Society of Portland has been a leading voice in conservation for over a century. Through conservation advocacy, environmental education, our wildlife rehabilitation center, and other programs we promote the understanding, enjoyment, and protection of native birds, other wildlife and their habitat. We are located in a 150-acre wildlife sanctuary in Forest Park, just minutes from downtown Portland. With over 15,000 members and 450 regular volunteers, we are the largest independent chapter of the National Audubon Society in the United States. Additional background regarding our extensive education, advocacy, wildlife rehabilitation and habitat programs can be found at www.audubonportland.org. We have just completed a five-year strategic plan.

A central goal moving forward is to infuse equity, inclusion, and diversity (EID) into all of the goals and work of the organization. All Portland Audubon staff are responsible for implementing these EID goals into the departmental strategies, programs, and work plans.
